Digital Cash in New Zealand - Feedback

I attempted to fill out your multi choice feedback survey re: Digital Cash in New Zealand and gave up. It's clear that it's a fait accompli as far as the public having no choice as to what's coming down the pipeline. RBNZ seeking feedback from the public is a disingenuous exercise in box ticking. There is no good faith on your part.

Central Bank Digital Currency in New Zealand is going to be rolled out whether the public like it or not, all part of the global agenda to enact full spectrum dominance over all populations of the world, including New Zealand.

Full spectrum surveillance, tracking, tracing and control is the end goal. I have no doubt that digital ID will be required, then the roll out of the NZ Digital Currency with: programmed restrictions on spending and time limits for expiry; ever increasing conditions on behavioural compliance; limits on inheritance or zero possibility to pass on an inheritance; real time instant penalty withdrawals with no recourse, suspension of accounts, deletion of accounts and a raft of other control and surveillance mechanisms that are waiting in the wings to be added incrementally as social engineering continues.

The global banking/financial infrastructure is already here, the transition is long planned, and the implementation merely waiting for the memo from on high in order to press GO, in 'lockstep' no doubt. I'm sure you have your implementation deadlines already locked in on the calendar as dictated by the global string pullers.

This agenda has been discussed ad infinitum out in the open on public record, incrementally prepared for over decades through amendments to legislation, quietly and not so quietly setting up the infrastructure, and the onslaught of psychological conditioning of tech convenience resulting in mass acceptance over time by 'the masses'.

Again, I'm sure it's pointless to appeal to any implementors of the agenda, but at least I can go to my grave knowing that I said my bit. None of this digital dystopia is for the wellbeing of the human being and will not end well for any of us, including you.

If you are in on this, shame on, if you're naive and have no idea what I'm talking about, shame on you also.

Thank you for rolling out your part of the ever advancing digital hellscape.
